Createspace. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 498 pages. Love is the theme of Ang-Lit. Presss fourth fiction anthology. The successor to Israel Short Stories and Tel Aviv Short Stories, the new anthology is a salutetribute to Israels 65th anniversary. Though the settings and themes are quintessentially Israeli, the narrative voice is that of the insideroutsider - the Anglo (English-speaking) resident. The more than 45 authors are expatriates from the U. K, USA, Canada, South Africa, India, etc. Many of the stories reflect Israels complicated reality. One story explores how love is not enough to breach the political void between an Israeli soldier and her American boyfriend. Another deals with a young woman insisting on naming her son after her childhood sweetheart an Arab boy named Aziz. Theres a Ukrainian bride who falls in love in Jerusalem . . . but not with her Israeli groom. An apartment owner who exacts a fitting revenge on the woman who cheated her out of the mountain view she loves. An unlikely romance between an American ulpan student and a battle-hardened vet of the Soviet special forces. A mother whose liberal Zionism is tested by her sons romantic choices a Sephardic Jew and an Arab. And a rabbi who gives his blessing to a married mans affair, with tragic results. Though the stories are presented under six geographical headings - Haifa and The North; Jerusalem; Tel Aviv; SomewhereAnywhere in Israel; The Kibbutz Moshav; The Desert - the stories can and should be read in any order. A major advantage of a short story anthology like ours, says Ang-Lit. co-foundereditor Shelley Goldman, is that there is no chronological order. You can jump from Haifa, to the Negev, wherever, whenever you fancy. The stories, like their 45 authors, reflect and...
