Green teas can trace their origins back to China, as most varieties of teas, and has been used as many things, from simple beverages to traditional Chinese medicines. One only needs to go as far as a tea house in Japan, a restaurant in Shanghai or an ice-cream parlor in Beijing to realize the fanfare that Asian cultures have for green tea. But why have these Asian cultures preference always been green rather than black teas? For years, big brands like Lipton and Nestle had sold mass quantities of black tea and even prior to that, European traders focused their Chinese exports on black teas as well. Therein lies the reason. People generally are against change. Black tea was brought by their predecessors, people liked it. Don t fix something that isn t broken, was the thought process going through people s heads. That was until people started becoming more aware of some negative aspects of black tea. It is high in caffeine, low in other positive nutritional values. And, it stains your teeth. Well, that publicity finally broke black tea and the public was on a search for other items. 7 Reasons To Buy This Book => 1. Its Short And Informative No Fluff!! => 2. This Book Is Straight Forward And Gets To The Point...
