The general results of the arbitration were: New York Central Railroad, Buffalo and east: Employees working more than nine consecutive hours per day, who have been in the service one year or more, awarded seven days annual vacation with pay; after three years service, 10 days annual vacation with pay. Employees working nine hours or less per day, after two years service, awarded seven days annual vacation with pay. Employees request for a rule relieving them from flagging crossings, operating pumps, or caring for switch lamps was denied. An increase of 10 per cent in salaries of all employees included in the arbitration was awarded, such increase to be distributed as agreed upon by the railroad officials and telegraphers committee. The request for...
